

THE DEPOT AT BORON, CALIFORNIA

By

Charles H. Bogart

The information on this building at “The Twenty Mule Team Museum” at Boron, California, was somewhat confusing. My understanding of the information posted was that the depot was built by the Sante Fe Railroad circa 1900 for use at Kramer, California, Mile 2119.6 from Chicago. Upon the playing out of the local mines, Kramer folded and the depot building was moved circa 1955 some 4 miles west to Boron, California, Mile 2123.9 from Chicago. Then circa 1980, the depot was moved from trackside onto the museum’s grounds.

Above and below – The Boron Depot as it sits in 2012 on the grounds of the Twenty Mule Team Museum.

Boron can still be made out on the Depot's station board.
